

24. There was pitch dark inside the house, and Jack fumbled about looking for his matches, and muttering under his breath.
25. The sick man had been brought ashore and put into hospital on the quarantine station.
26. When she woke up she rubbed her eyes to gather her senses together, and gradually she remembered to go to the cinema on the previous evening.
27. I think there is nothing before me but a hard work.
28. Putnam was jailed for three years and eleven months and Fleckney for four and half years in February for their parts in drug dealing.
29. He added that she was desperate not to return to the Carstairs hospital - "She wouldn't survive therenot in any recognized form".
30. His plane had crashed, and he was lying in the field or in a hospital, wounded or dead.
31. The bar, the landlady's parlour and even her bedroom were all full of relics from the pub past and have all been used in the museum
32. Childminders criticized new government guidelines yesterday that would allow them to smack babies and small children of their care.
33. One of Britain's champion cheese-maker is giving up because, he says, shoppers have been brainwashed into buying Cheddar.
34. Dozens of the British tourists were evacuated from a hotel yesterday after a fire broke out in the bar.
35. Catherine turned on the lights, everyone of them, flooding the room so that she could see him, study him, devour him.